

2009 Summer Camp in Bulacan Anticipated

When summer begins to burn, so do the hearts and hopes of NCF for a greater harvest, as the forthcoming 2009 NCF Summer Camp finds its ground at Jordan Farms located at Tigbe, Norzagaray, Bulacan.

Strikingly familiar enough would be the camp's official title: DotA, which, while hitting the attention of most computer gamers on the latest PC game craze, still possesses a different and more striking designation: Disciples of the Almighty.

In line with the said title, the camp intends to help discover and develop the talents of people (especially young people) who will be used for God's service particularly in the field of music, dance and the creative arts.

Workshops and preaching services will be handled by all our Pastors, Mark Dantes, Andrew Fajardo, Kirby Figueras and Albert Salipot, people from the music field such as Gigi Dantes, Joam Fajardo, Michael Dantes and Bob Guzman, and some seniors from the Dance Ministry such as Angel Baldonado and Hannah Nueva.

The camp, as planned, will run for four days, from April 22 to 25, and though requiring a cost of 300 pesos per camper, the benefits and experience for the campers, talent-wise or even in their spiritual lives, will definitely be worth it.

